A FEAST OF FAERY

The Company of the Silver Hare

Author: Joy Pitt
ISBN: 978-1-908577-87-0
RRP: £6.99
Date: March 2019

This is a rich story of myth and magic in the Human Realm and the Realm of Faery.

Inspired by the Pendle Witch Trials of 1612.

The overgrown ground in front of them began to tremble a little and the children could just see the outline of three mounds, barely visible beneath the undergrowth. Out from the graves, slowly, like blind moles emerging from their tunnels, came three ancient ghosts, so worn and tattered there barely seemed any substance to them.

TENNIS WILL NEVER BE THE SAME

District Dodie

Author: Ellis Delmonte
ISBN: 978-1-908577-88-7
RRP: £5.99
Date: April 2019

Dodie and friends return a holy relic to where they believe it belongs — the hallowed grounds of Wimbledon.

Fourth in the Tubemice series.

Dodie had no idea about any of this. The thought of taking their Gift to the Tunnellers seemed suddenly small and silly. What would they want with such a thing? How could they value what must have been, to them, the tiniest speck of dust in Surfaceworld? She felt a terrible heaviness of spirit, as if she was holding the bridge up all by herself.

I threw my purse, umbrella, coat and hat in the general direction of my make-up table and ran upstairs. Much to my surprise, instead of a neat row of warming up dancing girls, I found them huddled in the middle of the stage around one of them, who was sitting on the floor. As I approached on tip-toe, one by one the girls noticed my presence and made way. None of them wanted to stand in the way of me and my comeuppance.

The flowers smell of passion. Of dust. Of dirt. Of hurt that floods a siren's dirge up from the bloodshot river. She mixed bad medicine and no-one would forgive her.
